British Listen for Third Time To Japanese Apologies For Assaults

SHANGHAI, Oct. 25.—(INS)—The view that a Japanese airman acted deliberately when he machine-gunned and killed a British soldier, and fired purposely on Americans and other foreigners enjoying a Sunday outing on the outskirts of the International Settlement, gained ground today in all circles of Shanghai.

As the British listened for the third time to Japanese apologies for assaults, eye-witnesses unanimously pronounced that the new attacks must have been intentional.

Even in highest British ranks it was unofficially admitted that, after the machine-gunning of the British Ambassador, then the British Air Attache, and now the killing of a "Tommy," they are forced to the excessively unpleasant conviction that the Japanese armed forces, with or without the approval of Tokyo, are attempting to terrorize Britain.

In this strategy, it was believed, Japan had three alternative motions.

One may be to force a war with Great Britain before she has a chance to complete the Singapore Naval Base and build up her new battleship fleet, which Japan believes is aimed against Nippon.

The second is to frighten Britain, America and other nations of the West in an attitude of complete passivity in the nine-power conference to open at Brussels next Saturday.

And the last is to scare the peace-minded citizens of America and Britain to the realization that meddling with Japan is playing with dynamite.

Congregation Honors Its Pastor and His Bride

Newportville, Oct. 25.—A surprise miscellaneous shower was tendered Mr. and Mrs. Gordon MacLean by members of Newportville Church, Saturday evening. Mr. MacLean, pastor of the church, and Mrs. MacLean, who were married two weeks ago, were feted by the congregation in the Newportville Church basement, which was tastefully decorated for the occasion by the Young People's Christian Union.

About 50 people attended, with the guests of honor receiving gifts. C. Bentley Collins, one of the trustees of the church, acted as master of ceremonies, and led the music. The newlyweds were conducted to the church by him, where the group awaited with gifts and a large wedding cake, a gift of the "Cheerful Workers."

During the evening a surprise package and letter arrived, which Mr. Collins read to the guests amid great hilarity, as it contained an odd assortment of gifts with interesting advice for the minister and his bride.

A cold supper was served.

COLLEGES HAVE FAILED TO EDUCATE, IS CLAIM

Survey Indicates Surprising Trend; Freshmen Superior In Fundamentals

FIGURES PRESENTED

(Note: Have colleges failed? The startling disclosure that freshmen excel seniors in seven out of 11 subjects is presented in the second of a series on the value of a college education.—I.N.S.)

By Raymond Wilcox
(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 25.—(INS)—Uniform tests given students of six Pennsylvania colleges showed that freshmen excelled seniors in seven of eleven subjects and tied them in one.

The frosh topped the upper classmen in English, spelling, grammar, vocabulary, literature, mathematics and history. They were even on punctuation. The seniors were ahead in intelligence, general culture and general science.

The disclosure of freshmen superiority in fundamentals was a feature of the Carnegie Foundation's "Pennsylvania Study." Colleges came in for severe criticism that they were not really educating their students and that they were chiefly factual.

Development of reasoning powers, the report held, rather than acquisition of facts, should be stressed.

The "Pennsylvania Study" consumed seven years. A complete report has never been made but the six-college test was a feature of the initial findings. Results of identical tests given to the four classes of the six colleges show:

	Fresh	Soph	Jun	Sen
Intelligence	56	57	57	58
English (total)	227	218	211	221
Spelling	31	30	28	30
Grammar	30	31	29	29
Punctuation	31	29	29	31
Vocabulary	60	58	58	58
Literature	73	71	70	72
Mathematics	53	52	51	49
General culture	265	285	302	289
General Science	74	77	87	86
History & Social Studies	81	81	80	79

The "Pennsylvania Study" resulted from efforts made at a meeting of the Pennsylvania Association of College Presidents to ban all students except those able to pass the college board examinations. This move was opened by Dr. James N. Rule, who was then

ENGAGEMENT MADE KNOWN

The engagement of Miss Katherine Mocer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Mocer, 1109 Beaver street, and John Morici, son of Mr. and Mrs. Isadore Morici, 238 Franklin street, was announced Saturday evening at a party given by Miss Mocer's parents in St. Ann's club room. The engagement was announced by Memo Marsegia, Lincoln avenue. The evening was enjoyed in dancing to the strains of an orchestra. Miss Mocer received many gifts. Guests attending this affair were from Bristol, Philadelphia, Trenton and New York.

FRUITS OF GOOD MANAGEMENT

Only a part of the story of the Borough of Bristol during the last four years was told in a recent review dealing with reduced assessments and reduced tax rate, combined with revenues now received from municipal activities which previously involved substantial expenditures.

While that review also set forth the highly important fact that during those four years Bristol was one of the comparatively few communities throughout the country which operated within an economy budget without going into the red, while paying off all maturing bonds with accrued interest, no word was said there of water, street, sewer and other large improvements that were made during the present and now closing term of Burgess Anderson, Tax Collector Girton and members of Council who are candidates for re-election on November 2nd.

Nor did that statement encompass other large revenue-producing improvements, all accompanied by a further safeguarding of the lives and property of our citizens, through strengthening the Police and Fire Departments.

Inasmuch as Burgess Anderson heads a Republican ticket which is running upon a record of accomplishment and merit, it is in order that the people should be able to review that record in some detail. For, without qualification it can be said that those charged with the responsibilities of administration and management of the Borough and its affairs during the last four years have missed no opportunity to protect and advance the interests of our citizens, and to extensively expand the physical development of the town.

Considerable of this has been in the nature of permanent improvements which come under the heading of capital equipment. In other words, there has been a very substantial increase in the value, as well as the service, of the whole municipal plant which constitutes the Borough, under the joint ownership of the entire citizenship.

The addition of two patrolmen has brought the membership of the Police Department to nine—the Chief, a desk man, and seven policemen. Better policing of the community has been accompanied with the rearrangements in the Fire Department, thus keeping both those branches of municipal service at top-notch efficiency.

Before the close of 1937, this 4-year period will record the complete rebuilding or reconstruction of streets and highways to a total of more than 20,000 feet, or approximately five miles.

The streets and avenues that have been improved by this extensive program include: Farragut, Cleveland, Hayes, Taylor, Wood, Lafayette, Cedar, Wilson, Beaver, Mifflin, McKinley, Roosevelt, Taft, Monroe, Chestnut, Washington and Green.

In Wood and Taylor streets particularly, there also has been a considerable extension of the sanitary sewer system; Mill Street Wharf was rebuilt; and there have been many similar improvements designed for long-time service, and which go to extend more and better service to the whole community.

But probably more outstanding than any of the foregoing were the improvements and extensions made to our water system, serving to put that municipal activity upon a much higher

ST. ANN'S ELEVEN SCALPS CARLISLE INDIANS, 14-0

Second Straight Victory For The Doughertymen During The Present Season

INTERFERENCE PERFECT

The Carlisle Indians, leaders of "Pop" Warner's football conference, bowed to the St. Ann's A. A. eleven yesterday afternoon on the local gridiron by the score of 14-0. It was the second straight victory for the Doughertymen who face their crucial contest of the season next Sunday, meeting the Sellersville Green Jackets at Sellersville.

The interference set forth by the locals in yesterday's tilt was almost perfect. From the opening kickoff it was evident that the "Saints" would demolish the invaders. For from the twenty yard line they began a drive which terminated when "Teddie" Tosti on a short reverse went around right end for nine yards and a score. The extra point was converted by "Carm" Gullatto who place-kicked the ball and the local team was leading, 14-0.

Hardly had the noise from the first touch-down died down than the pro-

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

(Copyright, 1937, by The Baltimore Sun)

Jimmie And His Job

APPARENTLY, when the Loyal Order of Moose some time ago advertised the President's son "Jimmie" as "Brother James Roosevelt, Administrative Assistant to the President of the United States" it knew what it was doing. That resounding title, which no one previously had heard, was neither an exaggeration nor a joke. At least, not much.

Clearly, Little Jimmie, as his father is fond of calling him, must have tipped his brethren of the Moose, as the fact that he was all that, or about to become all that, had eluded the sharp-eyed Washington journalists. They thought he was just another secretary. It was a clean-cut scoop for the Moose. Because, despite the President's efforts to minimize the importance of the new duties assigned to his son and his denial that he is to be a "co-ordinator" or a "liaison officer," or the "Assistant President," or anything of that sort, the fact remains that the new assignment to a considerable extent justifies the title and substantiates the advertisement.

PERHAPS JAMES is not to attempt the Herculean task of lessening the confusion with which the New Deal has reeked from the start and which defeated those two sturdy "co-ordinators" Mr. Donald Richberg and Mr. Frank Walker. Nevertheless, when it is stated that he is to confer regularly with the heads not only of the New Deal agencies but with the great, long-established and supposedly independent boards, such as the Federal Reserve, the Interstate Commerce and the Federal Trade, it will be conceded that this is quite a job for a 29-year-old man whose previous business experience began just before his father entered the White House and has been limited largely to selling insurance.

IT IS EXPLAINED that these regular Monday and Tuesday consultations with James are to be entirely "voluntary" upon the part of the heads of the agencies and

The War Situation

War's webs spun world-wide entanglements today as bombing in China, blood in Spain and money in London reached out to enmesh America. Developments in the international situation:

Shanghai—The belief Japan is trying to "scare off" America and other world powers from "meddling" in the Far East spread after a British soldier was killed in an allegedly deliberate Japanese airplane attack.

London—Europe's Mediterranean crisis was a factor in a sudden decline today of the stock market. British authorities felt, however, that the law regarding non-intervention in Spain no longer rests in Italy's favor, for Italy, it was believed, is exhausting herself in the Spanish adventure.

Hendaye, France—Moors were used in the front line as the Spanish insurgents began their "big push" on the eastern front.

Planes Bomb Shanghai Lines

Shanghai, Oct. 25.—A gigantic fleet of at least 100 Japanese warplanes bombed the lines in the Shanghai area today. The Chinese admitted suffering extremely heavy losses. They asserted the Japanese loss of 2000 dead and wounded in a subsequent line engagement, however.

Italian Planes Shot Down

Valencia, Oct. 25.—Two Italian airplanes were shot down by Loyalist forces at Barcelona today, according to a bulletin issued here. One fell into the sea and the other crashed on land, killing all five occupants. They later were identified as Italians.

River Washes Over Dyke; Stops Morrisville Work

MORRISVILLE, Oct. 25.—The waters of the Delaware river, which is considerably swollen, washed over temporary dyke built by WPA labor and yesterday flooded that section where the men are constructing a permanent dyke to prevent the river from flooding the lowlands.

The temporary dyke had been constructed to hold back the river while the men were engaged in building the permanent retaining wall. With the heavy rains of last week the river was considerably swollen and washed over the dyke. The dyke held against the pressure, but the section where the work was in progress was flooded. The workmen will be unable to proceed with the wall construction for the next three or four days.

PENN VALLEY MAN HURT; BRISTOLIAN ESCAPES INJURY

C. A. Morgal Seriously Injured in Railroad Wreck at Coatesville

J. MULLIGAN IS UNHURT

Crack Passenger Train Collides With Milk Train On Sunday

One man from Penn Valley was seriously injured and a Bristol man escaped injury in a train wreck on the Pennsylvania Railroad at Coatesville last night.

C. A. Morgal, Tyburn Road, Penn Valley, is reported seriously injured. His family was notified early today and left at one o'clock this morning.

The Bristol man, Joseph Mulligan, 642 Corson street, telephoned to his home here this morning and stated that he was not injured. Mulligan informed his folks here that he was in a train enroute to work when the train was struck by another train. He stated that he had leaped out of the train and thus escaped injury.

The accident occurred at Lenover, 10 miles west of Coatesville, when two work trains crashed.

Both trains, made up of supply cars and old wooden coaches, were bound west from Parkersburg. The first, being pulled by its locomotive, stopped at Lenover for water. The second, being pushed by a reversed locomotive, crashed into the first at 9:10 P. M.

The last car of the halted train and the two leading coaches of the second were derailed and strewn over three of the Pennsy's four tracks there. Several passenger and freight trains were held up until the debris was cleared.

Nurses, doctors and ambulances were summoned from virtually all hospitals within a 25-mile radius. Fifty State motor police were called from five barracks.

Both Mulligan and Morgal were employed in electrification work in progress near Coatesville.

Three cars were demolished in the crash and the wreckage, strewn over three lines of tracks, delayed freight and passenger trains for more than an hour before the debris was cleared away.

Nuptial Ceremony Occurs On Saturday at St. Ann's

A nuptial ceremony took place Saturday at three p. m. in St. Ann's Catholic Church, when Miss Rose Sabatini, daughter of Mrs. Dominick George, 439 Washington street, became the bride of Anthony Seneca, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Seneca, 344 Washington street. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Peter Pinci. Miss Frances Tambarella, Dorrance street, played Lohengrin's wedding march, and Yolanda DiFelice, Lincoln avenue, was soloist.

The maid of honor was Miss Louise Mazzanti, Lincoln avenue, and the bridesmaid was Miss Filomena Viscuso, 439 Washington street. Serving the groom as best man was Nicholas Marino, Dorrance street.

The bride wore white lace over satin, fashioned on form-fitting lines. The high neckline was trimmed with satin rose-buds and lilies of the valley, and featured a high standing collar. The skirt ended in a train. The bridal veil, tilted elegantly with lace, had a face veil and a tulle headpiece trimmed with a halo of pearls. She wore white satin sandals and carried white chrysanthemums.

The maid of honor was attractive in a satin gown of deep rose tone with trim of aquamarine satin. The sleeves were short and puffed, and trimmed with small clusters of flowers. The form-fitting skirt flared at the bottom and ended in a short train. She wore a large hat of aquamarine satin, slippers and long lace mitts to match, and carried chrysanthemums blending with her gown. Miss Viscuso was attired in a gown of medium blue satin, designed like that of the maid of honor. Her accessories were in deep rose tone, and she carried chrysanthemums of that shade.

A reception was held at the home of the bride, and 200 guests attended. The couple left Saturday evening for New York City, where they will spend a week. Mr. and Mrs. Seneca will reside at the home of the groom's parents, 344 Washington street.

MUST START ON SELF

If man really wants to improve the world, he must begin by improving himself. That was the major point made by Dr. Alexis Carrel, eminent scientist and Nobel Prize winner, in his address at the Phi Beta Kappa 150th anniversary celebration at Dartmouth College.

Dr. Carrel wasn't talking about any of the current formulas for improving man in the mass by trying out the latest sociological notions of any one man or group of men. He was talking about improving the individual members of the human race. Something more drastic than mere improvement is necessary, according to Dr. Carrel. Science must virtually remake man, he holds, if man's own civilization is to survive.

And how is science to go about that job? Dr. Carrel advocates the establishment of "institutes of psycho-biology" for the purpose of producing leaders of the human race and of supplying the information necessary to civilizing both men and nations. It is the only way out, Dr. Carrel believes, because "the civilized races seem to be losing the courage to live. In almost every country, the reproduction of the more gifted individuals is decreasing. . . . Nervous fragility, intellectual weakness, moral corruption and insanity are more dangerous for the future of civilization than yellow fever, typhus and cancer."

That sounds rather ominous. And Dr. Carrel's proposed salvation of man by science sounds complicated and remote. But Dr. Carrel is confident that such salvation is practicable. "The spiritual," he insists, "is within reach of the scientific method."

BATHTUB CONSCIOUS

Cleanliness is not only next to godliness. It is humanity's best bet against pestilence and, specifically, America's major protection against importation of epidemics from far lands.

Public health experts at Washington do not share League of Nations medical experts' fears that the Sino-Japanese war will result in a breakdown of China's quarantine service and resultant spread of typhus and other plagues to Western countries.

And the reason for the Washington health experts' confidence is the fact that Americans are "bathtub conscious."

"We do not believe any epidemic will occur," a public health service spokesman is quoted as saying, "because of the close co-operation between the quarantine service and internal health organizations. Even if cases should get beyond the first line, they would be promptly encompassed by the second line."

And that second line derives much of its strength from "bathtub consciousness" wherein East and West have not yet completely met.

There is safety in numbers. If you injure one person, you pay damages; if you injure millions, you merely fail to get re-elected.

ECHOES OF THE PAST

By Courier Staff Member

Review of the news as it appeared in the Bucks County Gazette issue dated at Bristol, Apr. 13, 1876. The Gazette, a weekly newspaper published in Bristol, was discontinued following its merger with the Courier.

About 20 fishermen were fishing at Newportville dam on Tuesday night, catching suckers. A large number were caught.

The price of board at the Neshaminy House, Schenck Station, will remain at $2 a day during the Centennial year.

Mr. Townsend, reporter to the Centennial for "The London Field," and Mr. Clarkson, representative for some of the manufacturers of Birmingham, England, are stopping at the Neshaminy House, Schenck's Station.

Charles Brown, of Newportville, drove into the city last Friday. While there the horses ran away and dashed the wagon against a lamp post; the lamp post was broken and the glass shattered. Charles went before a magistrate who requested him to leave $25 until the amount of damages sustained by the city could be definitely ascertained.

The Red Men of Bristol had an election of officers recently with the following result: Sachem, A. K. Joyce; senior Sagamore, William H. Foster; junior Sagamore, Joel Singleton; chief of records, Thomas B. Douglass; assistant Chief of records, William Loudembourg; keeper of Wampum, Henry M. Wright; trustee, A. K. Joyce; representative to grand council, William S. Daniels.

At the annual election for officers of Bristol Fire Company last Thursday evening, the old officers were re-elected. The president of the company is A. H. Jones, Esq.; treasurer, C. W. Peirce, Jr.; secretary, Charles E. Scott. A new board of trustees was chosen, viz: S. S. Rue, C. R. Kellingsworth, Strickland Yardley, J. M. Jolly, and W. H. Holt.

G. Herbert Pearson of Bristol has received an appointment in the Agricultural Department of the Centennial Exhibition.

C. W. and J. Peirce have a contract for printing 12,000 flags.

Mr. J. H. Bostwick is adding another story to his photograph gallery.

It costs between five and six thousand dollars a year to run Bristol Borough.

The following persons were recently installed officers of Hopkins Lodge, I. O. O. F., of Bristol: Abram R. Townsend, noble grand; Joshua Burton, vice grand; Jacob McBrien, treasurer; Thomas B. Douglass, secretary; and James W. Martin, assistant secretary.

ATTLEBORO—The council met last week and settled the matter of the arrangements, handed the money over to the members of the old fire company, and straightened everything up.

"Beauty's A Charm" by HARRIET HINSDALE

SYNOPSIS

DON AMES, publicity agent for Bloom-of-Youth Cosmetics, goes to Carterton, Louisiana, to tell Lucy Lee Carter that her photograph has won first prize of one thousand dollars in the nationwide beauty contest sponsored by his firm. He also meets Pearl Carter, ambitious and comparatively young second wife of ineffectual Wakefield Carter. Finding Lucy Lee as lovely as her picture, Ames proposes entering her as Bloom-of-Youth's entrant in the International Beautyquest soon to be held in Atlantic City. Lucy Lee shrinks from leaving Rosemead, her home, and Clyde Dixon, her sweetheart. But she consents in order to help her father and to send her young brother, Juddy, to school. On boarding the ship at New Orleans Lucy Lee gets her first taste of the staring crowds and flashing cameras that are to mark her career as beauty queen. At the New York pier Don Ames meets the party with more news photographers and the usual publicity hallyhoo reception. That afternoon, they go on to Atlantic City. The following morning Ames meets his old friend Neville Preston, stage and screen idol. Preston tells him of a thrilling adventure he has had the night before, when a beautiful young girl, entering his room by mistake from the balcony, fainted in his arms. Ames, realizing the girl is Lucy Lee, tells Preston, who is now a Hollywood director, that his protegee is about to be crowned "the most beautiful girl in the world." Preston promises she shall have a small part in his next picture and Don rushes to break the news to Lucy Lee.

CHAPTER XI

A contract for six months, at three hundred dollars. At first she thought he meant three hundred dollars a month, and that seemed perfectly wonderful. Daddy Carter signed the paper after a few weak protests; and though he would never admit it, she was certain he too had thought three hundred dollars meant a month's salary. How Mr. Ames laughed at her.

"It's three hundred smackers a week, Lucy Lee," he explained. "Three centuries each and every seven days, with commissions deducted, of course. Not bad for a little girl fresh from the country, huh? And by the end of the six months, you just watch me boost the figure. Why, inside of a year I'll have you in the thousand-dollar-a-week class and Poppa here will be thinking up new ways to dodge the income tax!"

Beneath her rouge Pearl was actually pale with excitement. It seemed from what Mr. Ames said they were going to be very rich, and all because Lucy Lee was beautiful.

Upstairs in the room again, after promising Mr. Ames to be at the Bloom-of-Youth booth by two o'clock and not be late. The hotel lobby was filled with men and women wearing red and gold badges: Fifth Annual Convention of the Beauticians and Cosmeticians of America. People from all over the United States who owned beauty shops. Other people who manufactured face creams and hair tonics, rouge and powder, here to advertise their wares.

That was why Lucy Lee had to be at the booth this afternoon. Mr. Ames said she must smile at people and be nice to them, so they would want to buy Bloom-of-Youth Cosmetics.

It was all very exciting and confusing. She would have liked to write Clyde about it but there simply wasn't time.

Three hundred dollars a week! And if it hadn't been for me, it would never have happened! Pearl's voice rose shrilly, as it always did when she got excited. "Hollywood! Just think of it. We're going to Hollywood. Well, I always did believe if you kept your mind on a thing long enough and hard enough you were bound to get it.

Lucy Lee had never before known anyone like Neville Preston.

"We'll have cars and chauffeurs and a big house in Beverly Hills with a swimming pool and whoopee room, just like all the stars I've read about. And a cottage at Malibu Beach, there on the Pacific Ocean! Isn't it lucky I've kept up with all the screen magazines the way I have? You always called them trash, Wakefield Carter, but now you see!" She paused in triumph, then added the magic words: "Three hundred dollars a week!"

"I must confess I do not quite understand how this has all come about, so suddenly," Carter remarked. "There were questions I wished to ask Mr. Ames, but he appeared to be in such a great hurry I refrained."

"I suppose you don't even know who Neville Preston is?" said Pearl with an air of conscious superiority.

"Well, no, I can't say I do, my dear. However, I gathered from what Ames told us that he had something to do with the motion picture business."

Pearl rolled her eyes heavenward and hands went up in a accompanying gesture. "Listen to the man. Anyone would think you had lived in the heart of darkest Africa. But even there they probably know who Neville Preston is. Why, I've seen him in dozens of pictures. And just imagine, he's right here in this and now we shall expect soon to have an efficient fire company.

The telegraph poles are up nearly to the river on the new R. R. and Tuesday's "Evening Star" contained a notice of the opening of, and the price of fare upon the new line, which puts the fare at $2.65 from city to city.

The entertainment of the Emerson Literary Union on Saturday evening, was a success in every way. The exercises opened with music by Misses Knight and Lovett, followed by a reading, then a recitation by Miss H. M. Manger, which was well applauded; a piano and violin duet by Miss M. F. Knight and Dr. G. A. Parker; Mrs. Jarley's Wax Works and the Duth dialogue fairly brought down the house.

The Grand Officers of the Grand Lodge of the I. O. O. F. opened a new lodge of that order at Carversville last Monday evening. This lodge numbers 17 charter members, and 13 new members were initiated during that evening. The exercises were pleasant throughout. Deputy grand master Borie and grand secretary Nicholson addressed the members upon the condition of the order generally which they said was in a very prosperous condition. The new lodge will no doubt soon be in good running order.

The census of Philadelphia taken on the third instant shows a population of $17,440. The population in 1870, according to the federal census was 674,922.

LINDBERGH AND EARBART

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind.—(INS)—It happened by chance, but a newly-born Lindbergh and an infant Earhart spent the first days of their lives in the same room at the Coleman maternity hospital here.

With them were their respective mothers, Mrs. Alice Lindbergh and Mrs. Lucille Earhart. Appropriately, Mrs. Lindbergh is the mother of the boy and Mrs. Earhart, mother of the girl.

FRUITS OF GOOD MANAGEMENT

revenue-producing basis, at the same time that its value as a community asset was greatly enhanced.

Not only was the Filtration Plant completely replaced, but twenty-three miles of water mains were laid in Bristol Township and hooked up to the Borough supply system, thus making available to approximately 1,200 homes a pure water supply, and, at the same time, furnishing adequate fire protection by the installation of more than 100 fire hydrants in that area where no water supply of that kind was available theretofore.

The erection of a brick and concrete extension to the filter building houses two new 17-foot circular filters, each having a capacity of three-quarters of a million gallons per day. Also, two old 15-foot filters were replaced by new ones of the same dimensions, each having a capacity of half a million gallons a day.

The work of completely rejuvenating the filter plant was rounded out with the replacement of four other old filters which had seen more than 20 years of continuous service, with a like number of new ones.

This has brought the capacity of the filter plant to 4 1/2 million gallons daily, or more than 3,000 gallons per minute.

Perhaps the best picture of what this enlarged and improved water system means can be had from the figures of total gallons pumped, year by year.

Using round figures—which in each instance are somewhat less than the actual figures, the total pumpage from 1933 to the present year are:

1933	389 1/2 million gallons
1934	531 "
1935	560 "
1936	619 "
*1937	650 "

* The figure for the current year is regarded as a very conservative estimate.

eran of the World War with a record of unusual courage, and has done an excellent job of representing his constituency and the public as a whole.

The son of Jacob H. and Mary (Wanner) Wagner, he was born August 29, 1879, at Gratersford, Pa., where he attended the public schools. Continuing at Perkiomen Seminary, he was graduated from there in 1897, and in 1901 was graduated from Lafayette College with the degree of Bachelor of Philosophy.

Going then to Jefferson Medical College, he received his medical degree in 1904, and during the following year served as an interne in the Robert Parker Hospital, at Sayre, Pa. Shortly after that he established an office for the general practice of medicine at Allentown, where he remained for six years. He then came to Bristol and has practiced here continuously since, with the exception of the period during which he served in the World War. In addition to his practice, Dr. Wagner conducts a private hospital here.

Dr. Wagner was one of the first to volunteer for service when America entered the World War.

and he remained in action throughout the conflict, first as a lieutenant in the United States Army Medical Corps attached to the 308 Infantry Regiment of the 77th Division, then being advanced to Captain, and finally being commissioned a Major on November 1, 1918.

He received his fellowship in the American College of Surgeons in 1920; is a past president of the Bucks County Medical Society, and is a member of the American Medical Association, the Pennsylvania State Medical Society, and the Philadelphia Medical Club. He is a past president of the Bristol Rotary Club, and takes an active interest in the Fathers Association of the public schools. He is a member of Robert W. Bracken Post, No. 382, American Legion. He is also affiliated with Bristol Lodge, No. 970, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks.

On September 25, 1909, Dr. Wagner married Jennie G. Flory, daughter of the late William H. and Mary (Paul) Flory; and they are the parents of Mrs. C. Ralph Powell, Jr.

Deputy State Superintendent of Public Instruction. He urged that high school grades provided a better basis and his proposal that a survey be made to determine the validity of high school work as a preparation for college was adopted. Thirty-six colleges participated.

In the six-college study which was conducted by Dr. W. S. Learned, it was shown that the average senior recognized only 61 words out of 100 words "in familiar use by educated people," as compared with 56 recognized by freshmen.

One youth who had been demoted from the junior to the sophomore class stopped all others in the tests. It was found he had been penalized for failure to observe class routine. His demotion was cancelled.

In another instance, a girl who was a candidate for highest honors, ranked fifth from the bottom of her class of 48. Inquiry developed that she had a pleasing personality, was popular with the instructors, and did routine tasks well.

The "Pennsylvania Study" blamed the state of higher education chiefly on the credit system whereby a student takes one of a certain number of courses and receives a fixed number of points for every course passed.

Dr. Stanton C. Crawford, dean of the liberal arts college at the University of Pittsburgh, had this to say:

"A widely publicized conclusion that college seniors do not know as much as freshmen is based on the results of tests which show chiefly that seniors as freshmen and sophomores from certain fields studied mainly in secondary schools and in the earlier college years. It should not have been necessary to give tests to prove that point.

"Experience of most of us is that detailed facts slip away from our minds with the passing of years. If development of reasoning ability, of wisdom, itself is viewed as important in education, the mere accumulation of facts seems subordinate. Facts are always at hand in encyclopedias and handbooks. Many persons who have specialized in memorizing facts do not know what to do with them. It is much better to be able to use the facts and to know how they may be obtained. But that ability is more difficult to test."

Some educators are of the opinion that the example of a few large schools in giving comprehensive examinations at the close of the college course will become the rule as a means of gauging what the student has acquired in his four years of study.

Dr. H. J. Leahy, who came here this year from Yale to be Professor of Educational Psychology at Duquesne University, said:

"Within the next ten years attempts undoubtedly will be made to judge the progress of college students not only on strictly subject matter, but in their ability to adjust themselves to various situations and to make friends. I feel that a great change in college education will come in the next quarter century in a trend toward vocational subjects.

Courage Amazes His Rescuers

Frank J. Downes, 47, is shown directing rescue workers who freed him after he had been pinned for a half hour between a two-ton steel hoist-door and a pier wall, 20 feet above the ground. Downes, an electrician, was working on the door at the Army Base, Boston, when the massive steel work slipped out of place and broke his leg.

ter century in a trend toward vocational subjects.

"The depression showed us that many men who went through college could not meet the requirements of ordinary jobs."

that he is to have no power to act or decide. We are led to infer that he will constitute himself a channel of communication, operating between the boards and agencies on the one hand and his eminent Papa on the other. The agency heads once a week will tell James their troubles and James will pass what data it seems should be passed on to the President, who will then see personally those he thinks should be seen, conveying to the others, through James, his orders, instructions and advice. The main idea is to promote harmonious action and save the President from seeing so many people. With these "objectives" no one can quarrel, but certainly they are the same as led to the appointment of Messrs. Richberg and Walker as co-ordinators. And if they do not make James a co-ordinator, too, then they do not make sense.

THE TRUTH, of course, is that it is regarded as good politics to minimize that notion in the case of James because of his youth and kinship, just as it was good politics in the case of Mr. Walker to play him up as "Assistant President." The heads of the boards and agencies who voluntarily consult with James will get the idea, despite the President's casual dismissal of the new duties of his son as "not news." The question is whether it will work. It didn't in the case of Mr. Richberg and Mr. Walker. Perhaps it won't with James, though it isn't likely. To the average public official, there is an instinctive and decided distaste to having a buffer between him and the real source of authority. However, it will be conceded that the assignment puts James in a unique position where he can influence the thought of his father by what he passes on, and how, and at the same time affect the function of governmental agencies all down the line.

SOME WILL see in it a move by the President to gain by indirect means some control over the quasi-judicial boards, which he has asked of Congress in his reorganization bill but which Others will see an effort to defy the Supreme Court, which, in 1935, told him in the Humphreys case the quasi-judicial boards were not intended to be dominated by the Executive. Other low minds will suspect the idea is to put James in training for succession to the throne and thus continue the Roosevelt dynasty after 1940. Certainly it makes a very considerable public personage of James, about whom, as about his father, there are two widely separated views. One is that he is an outstanding young man of quite unusual ability, great tact, large discretion and high character. The other view holds him a shallow, rather likeable fellow with considerable conceit, no real capacity, quite shy on judgment, who would have considerable difficulty in making more than a living had he to rely on his own resources.

WHICHEVER is correct, his installation as the official clearing house thickens the family flavor imparted to public affairs by this Administration. With Son James officiating in his new role, Son Elliott blossoming out as a radio news commentator, Son-In-Law Rootiger inditing eulogies and his father-in-law's policies and his mother-in-law's personality in a Hearst newspaper; with Mrs. Roosevelt syndicating a daily column and making almost a daily speech and other members of the family indorsing baking powders and other articles of commerce, the family capitalization of the White House is something without precedent and almost beyond belief.

FALLSINGTON LOSES FIFTH STRAIGHT GAME OF SEASON

By Louis Tomlinson
FALLSINGTON, Oct. 25.—An injury-riddled Fallsington eleven, coached by Mike DeRisi, went down to its fifth defeat in a row when they were held scoreless for the fourth as its Alumni with a touchdown and safety in the second period turned them back, 8-0.

DeRisi's proteges barely missed scoring their initial touchdown of the year in the five games when the game ended with the ball on the Alumni one yard line in the possession of the underdogs. They had driven down to that position late in the fourth period on a sustained drive but the door leading to their first score was closed upon them before they could reach it. The "Farmers" had just completed another first down on the yard line and before another play could be run off the whistle blew ending the tilt.

OLNEY KEEPS SLATE CLEAN; DEFEATS BRISTOL

The Olney Scholastics kept their slate clean on Sunday when they defeated the Bristol "Rees" by the score of 6 to 0, in a fast and furious game at Olney ball park.

The Olney club took advantage of a fumble by Bristol and put over its only touchdown. The field was good and soggy after the heavy rain, and that's what kept Bristol's fast back from scoring.

Next Sunday, Bristol plays Lambertville at Lambertville, N. J.

ANDALUSIA GRIDDERS WIN FOURTH STRAIGHT

Five touchdowns were scored by the Andalusia A. A. gridders yesterday afternoon as the boys of Joe Diamanti rolled in their fourth consecutive victory to keep their record intact for the season. The York Cardinals were the victims with the final tabulations reading: Andalusia, 34; York, 0.

The game was just as one-sided as the score indicates. It was all Andalusia from start to finish and the Green Wave seemed to be able to score at will. Accompanying the quintet of six-pointers were two extra points and a safety.

"Bill" Chapman scored two of the Andalusia touchdowns and did most of the ground-gaining for the victors. On the defense, Crummer and McCloskey stood out throughout the entire game. The Andalusians completed nine out of fourteen passes for considerable yardage.

Andalusia will meet the St. Ann's A. A. gridders, November 14, in a game which they expect to be their banner tilt of the season.

Gophers and Fightin' Irish Seek Top Honors

Both Notre Dame and Minnesota have tasted the bitter dregs of defeat but such is the greatness of their names that either can regain lost prestige by defeating the other. With Elmer at center and Uram and Moore to run the Irish flanks, Minnesota has the power to win. Notre Dame has Simonich and McCormick for strength and finesse in their shifty backfield.

teges of Coach Dougherty pushed over another. Recovering a fumble at mid-field they began another drive. Line plays and reverses had the Carlisle team in quandary. This time, "Tony" Orazi on a line play from the four yard mark counted. On a fake reverse, "Sags" Sagolla made the extra point to give St. Ann's its fourteen points.

Not wishing to roll up a higher score, Coach "Bill" Dougherty yanked his entire starting line-up and began to use players who haven't had the experience of the veterans and who will be the backbone of future St. Ann's teams.

a showroom and service department. The firm, which later was incorporated, also has used car lots on South Broad and East State streets.

A few years ago Mr. Balderston was president of the Mercer County Automobile Trade Association. He was a director of the Yardley Country Club and belonged to the Newtown Lodge of Odd Fellows and the Sedges Club, Barnegat Bay fishing and hunting organization. Heart of the Lions Attack

By BURNLEY

"Slingshot" Luckman, 1937's successor to the 1936 passing phenom, Sammy Baugh, is practically a one-man offense. The versatile Columbia star is not merely the key man of the Lions' attack—he IS their attack. If the opposition bottles up Slippery Sidney, Columbia has about as much chance of winning the game as China has of mopping up Japan.

Luckman means a lot of bad luck to the grid foes of the Lion. Sidney can do everything with the piskin but eat it. The Columbia comet can run, kick and pass—how he can pass!

One of the greatest aerial exhibitions of all time was unleashed by this gridiron machine gun against Army a couple of weeks ago. The bare statistics tell a mouthful.

The air-minded Lion tossed thirty-four (34) passes during that game, and completed eighteen of 'em, several more being of the "should-have-been" variety. His accuracy was amazing. The West Pointers concentrated on stopping Sid's heaves, as he is the entire Columbia offense. They rushed him unmercifully. Yet under this withering fire only one of his thirty-four flips could be called bad.

Army's Gar Davidson, in an interview after the game, called Luckman "the sweetest back I have ever seen." All-American selectors please copy. (Copyright 1937, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.)
